

5 NEW AFFIRMATIONS THAT BANISH ENTREPRENEURIAL FEAR

Adapted from "5 New Words for Entrepreneurial Fear" – ChrisDucker.com

I'M INSPIRED.

When you're afraid to try a new online technique, platform or project:

"I'm inspired to try it and put my own spin on it."

I'M IN DEMAND.

When you're doubtful even though you see where your expertise is needed:

"I'm in demand by people who are waiting for me to give them the solutions to their problems."

I'M SUMMONED.

When you're intimidated by learning a new skill or technology:

"I'm summoned to become a better entrepreneur today than I was yesterday."

I'M CAPABLE.

When your launch failed, you lost money on an investment or you made a huge mistake:

"I'm capable of avoiding those missteps next time."

I'M READY.

When you know your ideas matter, but you're afraid they won't matter to anyone else:

"I'm ready to offer people my ideas. I'm the right person, and it's the right time."

There's a potentially limitless audience that needs your solutions, service and inspiration.

You owe it to them to deliver.
